

First Flights. March 2017.

Contributed by Jos
Last Updated Sunday, 14 May 2017

20-28 March. First Flights. A full week earlier than the previous year, relative warm conditions brought the first butterflies onto the wing, so opening the 2017 season. Ice on forest pools, temperatures hardly amazing at 7 C, but with a pleasant sun, the year kicked off in style with the first species noted being a Yellow-legged Tortoiseshell at Labanoras on the 20th! Added a Brimstone minutes later. Over subsequent days, temperatures sat at 10-11 C, I found another Yellow-legged Tortoiseshell, plus about ten Small Tortoiseshells, a Comma (on the 28th) and a handful of Brimstones. So, spring was finally here, birds were pouring in, the first flowers of the season appearing in the meadows, plus a few frogs braving the cold waters. YEAR LIST

- 1. Brimstone.
- 2. Yellow-legged Tortoiseshell.

- 3. Small Tortoiseshell.
- 4. Comma.

CLICK HERE to return to the full account of the year